Dear All,

Three items for this GPSG newsflash that may be of interest to our members and friends:

1. New book on the Greek crisis and exclusive discount voucher for GPSG members

We are delighted to launch our new book - The Politics of Extreme Austerity: Greece in the Eurozone Crisis, which was published last week by Palgrave Macmillan. Featuring multidisciplinary contributions from leading social scientists and an exclusive interview with former Greek Prime Minister, George Papandreou, this is the first comprehensive account of the economic crisis at the heart of Europe.

GPSG members can use the attached voucher code to get a 30% discount on the cover price of the book (£68) when ordering directly from the publisher.

The Greek Politics Specialist Group is organising a virtual roundtable in collaboration with other Specialist Groups of the Political Studies Association. This will be the second in a series of three Google Hangouts set up by the PSA on the UK election and will evaluate Britain's position within the EU and the wider effects that the General Election may have on Europe. The virtual roundtable will be chaired by Professor Charles Lees (University of Bath).

For those unfamiliar with the Google Hangout format, it is essentially a public, free-to-access conference call which brings a number of people together via webcam and it is then hosted by Google on the Hangouts web page or live on YouTube. Our members, the media, and members of the general public can tune in live to our next Hangout at 2pm BST (3pm CET) on Wednesday 15th of April.

If you are unable to tune in live, the Hangout will be recorded and uploaded to our YouTube channel so that it can be watched back.

3. Internship Programme at the Salzburg Global Seminar

The Salzburg Global Seminar has launched an internship programme open to Greek residents/nationals only. The programme is supported by the Stavros Niarchos Foundation and more information can be found here:
